

one human community

by amelina jones

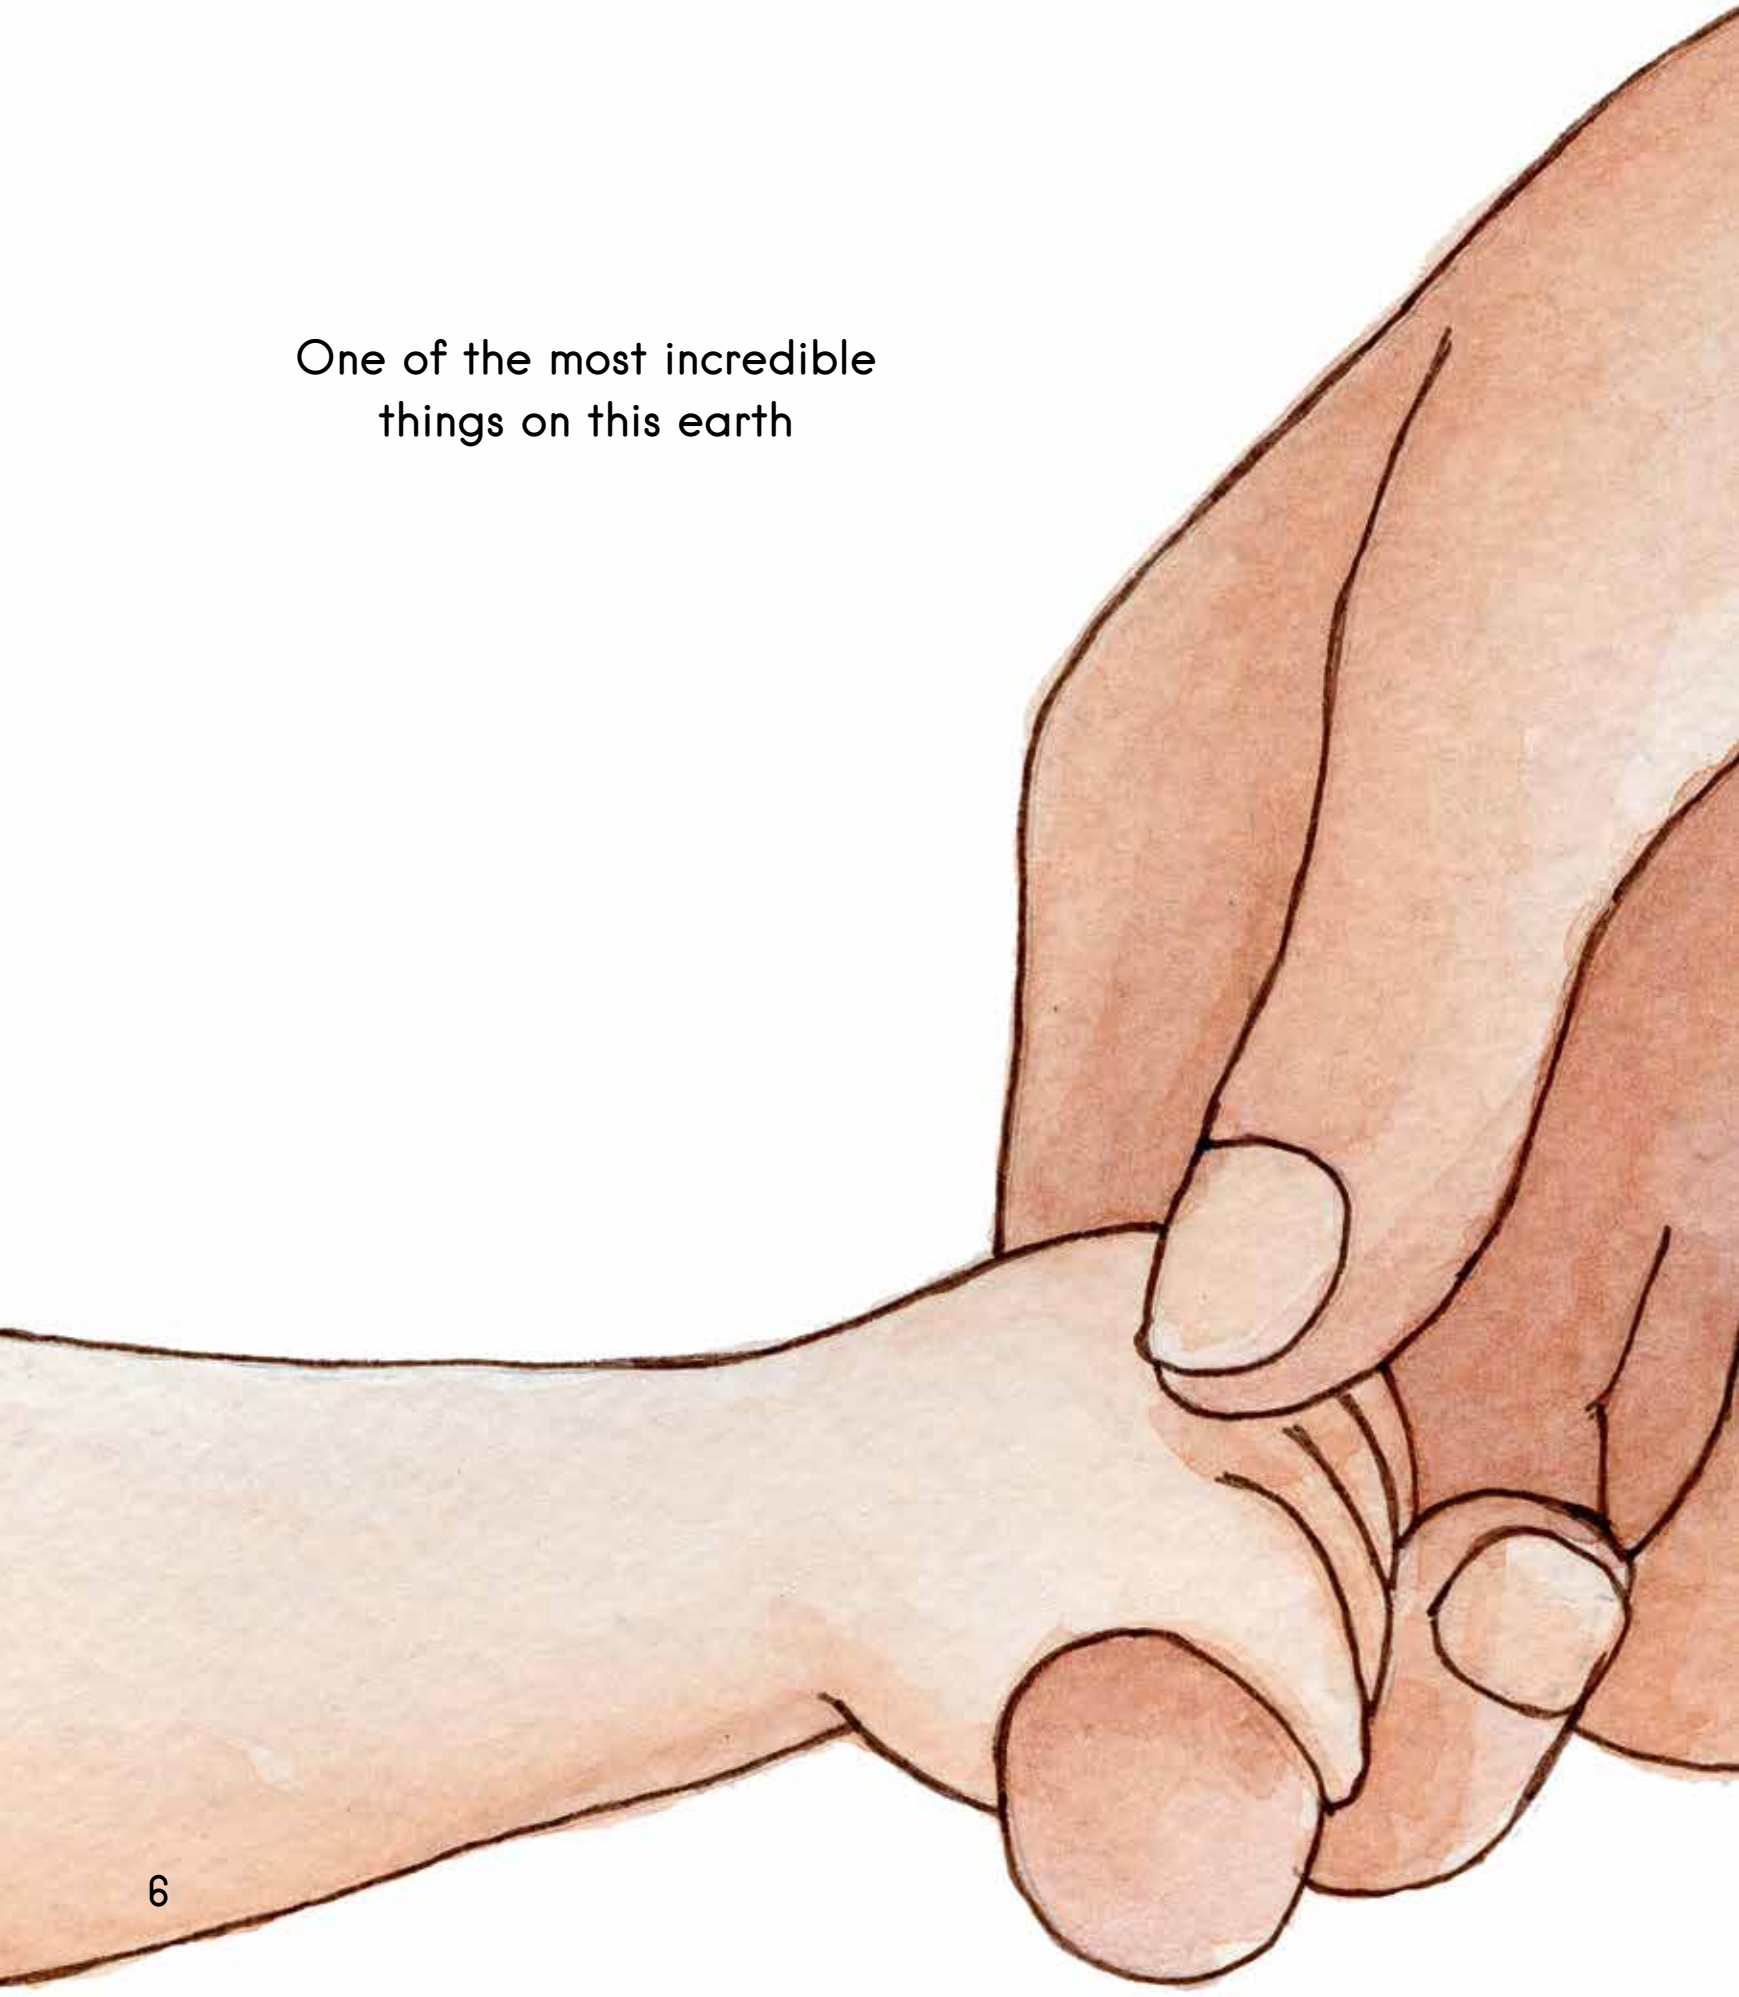

Earth is our home. It is a very special planet that lives in the sky. The sun is our star and it brings life to our world. It is a beautiful place full of incredible things.

One of the most incredible
things on this earth

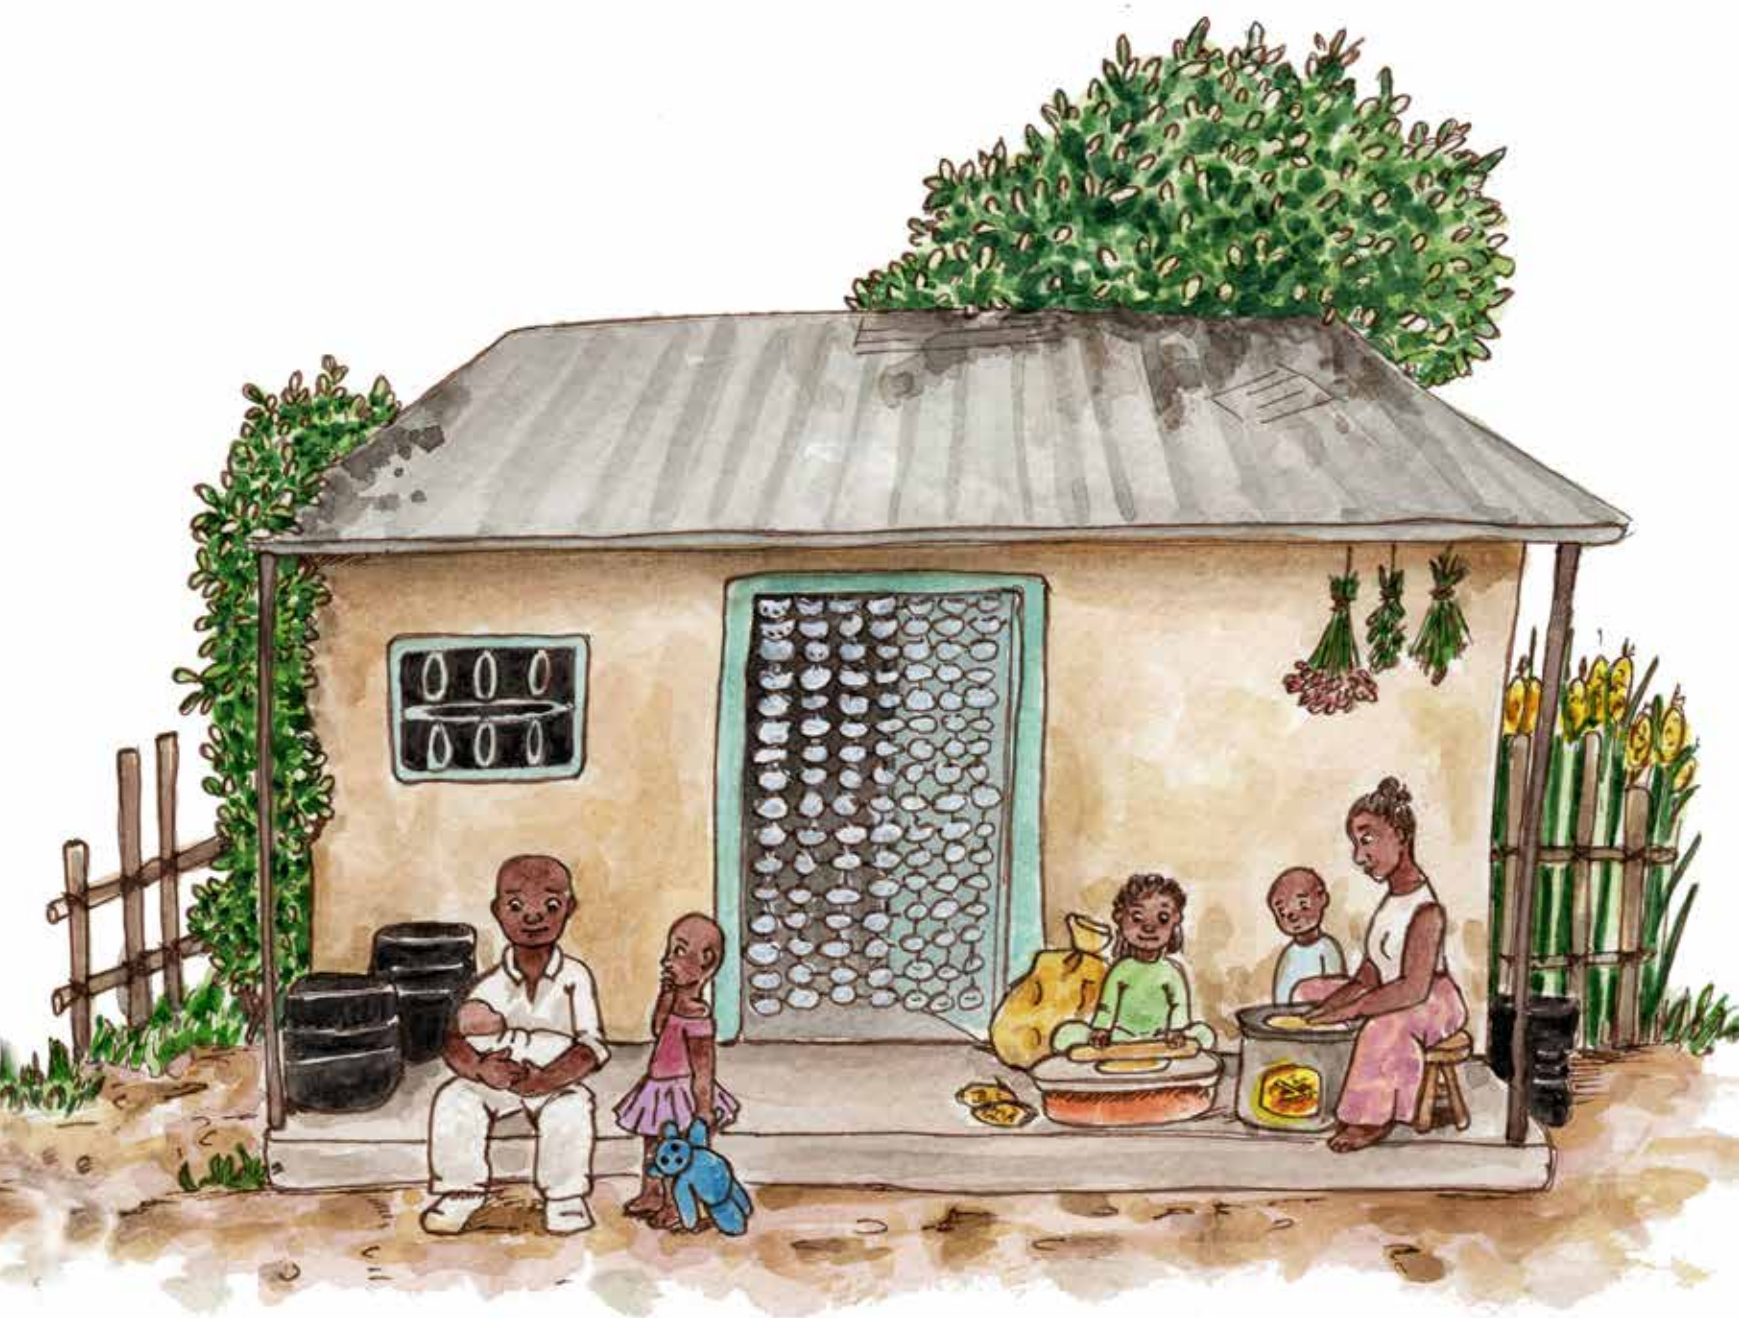

is you.

Look around you and you can see your family.
These are the people who care for you.

They can be all so different and yet so similar.

We are all connected as one human community living in different types of places all over the world.
