The Voice of The New Age

When Emma woke up in the morning,
she felt two bumps on each side of her head.

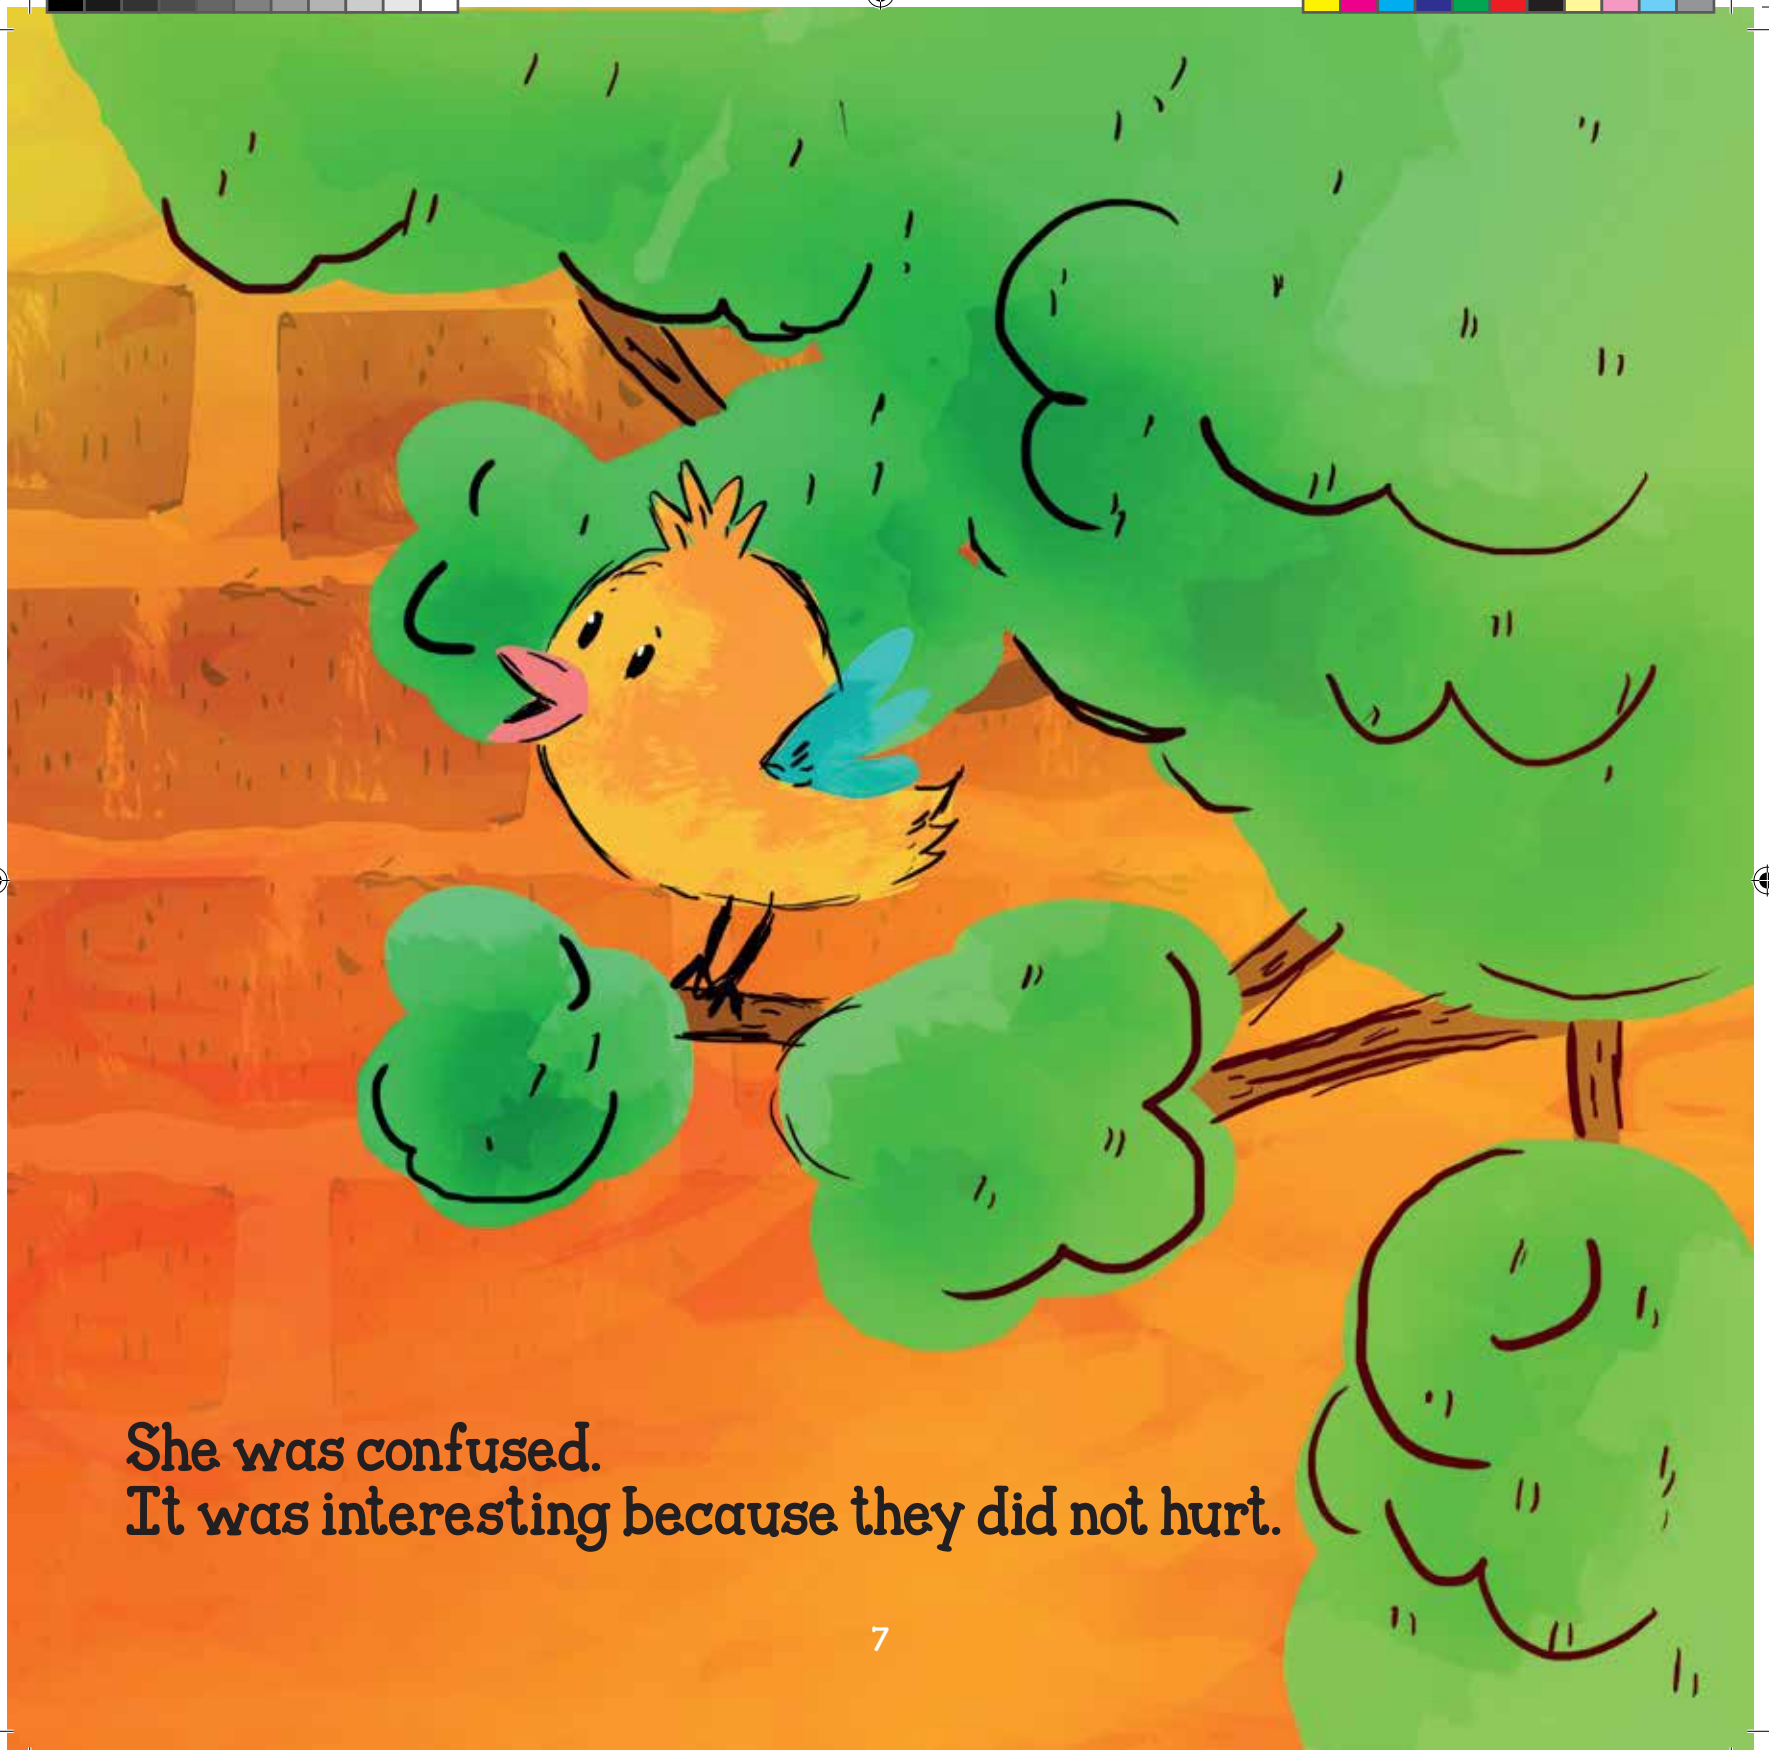

Did she hit her head on the bed while she was sleeping? She did not care. She thought they would go away soon.

The next morning, she woke up with the same bumps. This time they had grown a bit more.

She was confused.
It was interesting because they did not hurt.

On the third day, she went to the bathroom to wash her face and she could not believe her eyes. On both sides of her head there were large and thick antlers.

She tried to take them out with her hands, but could not. They seemed to belong to her body like her arms or legs.
